Art Unit: 1732

1.The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 11, 22 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by PCT Publication WO 99/20455 for reasons of record as set forth in the first office action. Note that the product would still be the same, even if produced by a slightly different method than the instant, and hence the claims remain anticipated.

2.The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 6, 9-11, 20, 21 and 23-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Winterton et al -929 (see col. 8, line 31 through col. 9, line 12).

Winterton et al –929 discloses the instant molding system and process for forming a polymeric molding wherein both the male and female molds have the instant masking collar portion made of a polymer impregnated with carbon black, such collar also disclosed to be UV absorptive. Hence, one mold half has the masking collar and the other is UV absorptive. The PMMA taught as the mold material is known to be amorphous and optically clear.

3.The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Winterton et al -929.

Winterton et al -929 is applied for reasons of record, the reference disclosing the basic claimed molding system lacking essentially the instant UV wavelength and ring thickness for the masking collar. It is submitted that these parameters are quite conventional and would have been modifications well within the skill level of the art in the molding system of the applied reference. For example, Winterton et al -929 teaches using UV light and the instant wavelength range would include typical UV wavelengths. Likewise, the thickness of the collar would have been within the skill of the art dependent on the degree of protection needed.

4.Claims 3, 12 and 15-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Winterton et al -929 in view of Ford (see col. 3, line 62 through col. 4, line 31).

Winterton et al -929 is applied for reasons of record and discloses the basic claimed invention lacking essentially a teaching of the instant COC polymer. Ford discloses this polymer for use in making an ophthalmic lens mold and such would have been an obvious material selection in the mold of the primary reference for the surface energy properties afforded by the COC material.

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

In view of the amendment, new art has been found which renders the claims unpatentable. Indeed, as clearly shown in Winterton et al -929, the instant mold with a masking collar of polymer impregnated with carbon black is known. As shown by Ford, so is the use of COC as a mold material. Hence, the claims are submitted to be properly rejected.

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
